LOVE ZANZIBAR

- » Please don't lift starfish out of the water. It is fatal! Many sea creatures, such as starfishes, corals and other sea animals are naturally born as extremely fragile creatures. Some sea creatures might die instantly after getting touched by humans or removed from sea water. So, please look, but do not touch anything when you are snorkelling or diving.
- » Minimize the consumption of plastics: empty or half used bottles of shower gel, sun cream, toothpaste, shampoo, body lotion, medicines, plastic bags, broken shoes or slippers etc... unfortunately there is no comprehensive waste management happening in Zanzibar, yet.
- » Be mindful and aware of limited resources: Zanzibar has very limited water, electrical energy and fuel. Use these resources sparingly.
- » Motorized vehicles are not allowed on the beach, in spite of what rental shops will tell you. Do not drive motorbikes, vespas, scooters or any other motorized vehicles on the beach. It's extremely dangerous for children and pedestrians and harmful to the environment. You may face police controls and fines.
- » Avoid jet skis: Lately, jet skis have ended up on some parts of the island, destroying the environment and affecting marine life. This activity is a hazard to swimmers in the water, dangerous for local children who are bathing in the sea, endangers the lives and livelihoods of fishermen at sea and detrimental to marine life (especially marine mammals and sea turtles).
- » Do not race through the village on quads or any other motorized vehicles. It's highly intrusive and disturbs the life of the local community.
- » Dress appropriately. Zanzibar has a predominantly muslim culture. Do not walk around the village or public areas in a bikini, bathing suit or shirtless.
- » Do not give money, candy or food to children. You may think you are helping them when giving children money, food or toys, but it is not responsible to help in this way. It reinforces bad habits, teaches children that they are dependant on tourism and actually reinforces inequality. Please do not behave like a « walking Visa card ».
- » Respect the privacy of the local community. Always ask before taking pictures and videos. Do not use children as a prop for your Instagram posts.
- » Be a responsible traveller. You can of course negotiate to get your best price, but remember: your money spent here improves the local economy and supports livelihoods. The difference between 1$ and 10$ may not be a big difference for your pocket, but it can go a long way here.

THANK YOU!
